PLENTY OF FRUIT DESPITE FREEZES

Georgia Peaches and California Cherries are Flowing to Markets.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington—Damage to fruit crops from freeze in some sections of the country has not resulted in a general shortage, the department of agriculture said Friday. Georgia peaches and California cherries are already flowing to the markets while the strawberry crop was said to be abundant in several places.
A good crop of apples and peaches is expected in Colorado and an average yield in New England and New York. A fair yield of late apples is promised in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Tennessee is looking forward to the largest blackberry crop on record, although expecting a short apple and peach crop. Utah will probably have only 30 per cent peach crop. Fair crops of blackberries and raspberries are looked for in Missouri.
The apple crop outlook in Iowa is improving but in Michigan only a light yield, except of winter apples. Peach crops in Arizona, the peach crop in almost a total failure and in Delaware peaches, pears, plums and cherries have been practically killed by frosts. Virginia was said to have very poor prospects in fruit this year.

SUIT IS STARTED OVER $6,500 NOTE

Papers were filed in the Rock county circuit Thursday afternoon in a promissory note litigation amounting to more than $6,500 with John Scott bringing suit against Warren Le Hoague, his wife, Abbie M. Hoague, D. W. North, Emergence Cottrell, Albert Wendt and Mrs. Albert Wendt.
It is alleged that the defendant gave the plaintiff a five year promissory note. The information states that there was a mortgage obtained and that at one time the note was in the hands of the plaintiff. Judgment for the amount remaining due on the note is demanded by Attorney M. O. Mowat, attorney for the plaintiff.

WANT TWO MORE STREETS HERE OILED

Property owners here filed petitions with City Clerk E. J. Sartell asking that two Second ward streets be sprinkled and treated with oil at the same time work is done on seven other streets which the council has ordered oiled at the expense of the property abutting. The two Second ward streets are Fifth avenue, from Walker to Hyatt; and Glen, from Caroline to Hickory.

PICK VACATIONS.
A game of chance is scheduled to take place in police headquarters Saturday night when the 34 members of the police department draw lots for their two weeks' vacation periods, the first one to begin Monday. One of the men who recently passed the first and second examinations may be put on to serve during the vacation period.

SADLER THE HARNESSEMAN
The Frank Sadler mentioned in Wednesday's Gazette as having judgment rendered against him in Justice Court is not the Frank Sadler, "The Farmer's Friend," who has sold harness to thousands of people in this section. I pay my bills promptly without need for recourse in Court. Some other man of the same name is the party referred to. FRANK SADLER, Court St. Bridge.

SPRING PAGEANT PUT ON BY CHILDREN OF THE GRANT SCHOOL

A spring pageant in which about 125 children of the Grant school took part was staged Thursday evening in the Grant school yard before an audience of about 250 people. Troops of little folks in attractive costumes danced and sang or recited fancy marches representing various flowers or attributes of spring. From the opening song of Agnes Staven, who welcomed spring, represented by Dorothy Atwood, to the closing goodnight chorus given to parents and friends, the whole affair was flawlessly executed and reflected great credit on the little folks and on those who had trained them.

Betty Porter gave a narcissus dance, and a swarm of flies represented by Orville Sarrow, Charles Wobbe, and Ruth Querna gave a waltz. The butterflies represented by Mary Larson, Harriet Heeman, Raymond Henry, Ann Hockaday, and Joseph Schuler danced and recited. Madden represented the "Wind" among the trees.
Rain represented by tiny boys in dun colored costumes dancing and singing was taken by Earl Nager, Russell Larsen, Frederick Karberg, Alvin Gehl, and Arthur Wobbe. The part of the frogs was taken by Frederick Sutherland, Wallace Gendland, and Sanford Atwood, while the rainbows were represented in a graceful dance by Mildred Fischer, Clarine Warden, Dorothy Buller, Margaret Sollerger, Albin Forster, and Alaine Perry. Angelina De Coster and Eleanor Erdman.
Ruth Meekis, Lucile Curtis, Mary Coughlin, Theodore Bidwell, and Catherine McCarthy represented the fireflies, having tiny flash lights to help them.

Chorus were also given by the Poppies, the Daisies, Dandelions, Violet, Tulips, Sweetpeas, and Daffodils. All in appropriate costumes. The children had selected most of the music for the production and had helped in the arrangement of the themes presented, so they were immensely proud of its success. They also sold programs, pop corn, ice cream cones and candy during the progress of the play. Miss Katharine Creighton and other teachers of the building arranged the parent, and Miss Rose Voss directed children in its production.
Mrs. Chas. Tullman, Mrs. Jos. Trevorah, Mrs. Roy Gendland, Mrs. Percy Munger, Mrs. Fischer, and others of the Parent-Teachers' organization assisted the children in their production.

WOMEN VOTERS SUPPORT PURE MILK BILL FOR THE STATE

Proposed legislation before the state and congress was discussed at a meeting of the League of Women Voters held Thursday afternoon at the library. Mrs. Frank Crook gave a list of the laws passed or discarded in the state legislature during the past month, including those relating to joint guardianship of children, teaching citizenship in the schools, laws pertaining to kindergartens and school nurses.

Mrs. Glenn Snyder discussed the terms of the Shepherd-Towner bill now before congress. The organization went on record as favoring the pure milk bill before the state legislature. This was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Sprackling.
The session of the next meeting which will be held in two weeks will be on the revised Smith-Towner bill and will be handled by Mrs. M. A. Cunningham. Other recent legislation is to be taken up at that time. Mrs. O. D. Bates is president of the organization. Mrs. Percy Munger, secretary, and Mrs. E. E. Buckingham, treasurer. All women interested are invited to join this group.

GETTING THE CHAMBER CLOSER TO ITS MEMBERSHIP.

The determination of the executive committee and the directors of the Chamber of Commerce to present the proposition to the new membership that the by-laws of the organization be so changed as to provide for 12 directors and none shall hold for more than two years, making practically a new board, is a good move and will tend to increase the confidence of the public. The more closely the administration of the affairs of the Chamber is joined to the membership, the greater will be the result accomplished. This is one of the long steps taken to broaden the Chamber under the new expansion program.

Illinois has passed a dry bill that makes the Matheon law look like a soaked sponge.

TIME TO GET TO A BUSINESS BASIS IN CITY BUSINESS.

After reading the opinion of the city attorney in reference to the responsibility and authority of the council in the matter of the automobile of the mayor, it would seem to be good business for the city to purchase an automobile for the use of the mayor. It will not be necessary then to split hairs over how much the machine is used for necessary city business and for personal use. The repairs and upkeep on the machine have cost the city so far, as the records plainly show, about $1200. That is a good deal of money for a machine that is in constant use for one purpose. Now it seems from the city attorney's opinion that part of the $1200 necessary for city business and the part for personal business, must be separated, as the $1200 is understood to represent all the repairs and upkeep regardless of what the machine was used for. This may seem a small matter but now when there are so many things demanded—so many little things for the betterment of the city—and the barrier of "no funds for the purpose" is constantly being raised, it would appear to be proper time to get all the city's business on a standardized business basis and to plug all the leaks.

It's a sad case of news suppression the way Carpenter and Dempsey's press agents try to keep everything out of the papers. Neither of them sends out over a team a day of copy.

SENATOR LENROOT'S WARNING.

When Senator Lenroot warned the senate that congress must cut down expenses or else some party other than the republican could win in 1924, he stated a fact that should be heeded. Congress fought for economy when there was a democratic president; it is more necessary now not only for preservation of the party, which is a small item to be considered as against great national benefit, but because the nation is now taxed to about the limit. We have gone on with warlike plans that cannot but prove an enormous burden. Senator Lenroot opposed the naval program which has been even larger than suggested by the jovial Mr. Daniels. The time has come for a cessation in the making of war machines and spending endless millions on war material. The most important thing, more important than Poland and Silesia, more important than even the German reparations, is that the nations of the world should enter into an agreement that war is unnecessary and that there never should be one again.

That cannot be brought about by spending billions on new ships that become obsolete about the time they are completed. We must have a navy for police work just as we have policemen to keep the peace. The possibility of war will be far less remote if we at this time when we have more power than ever in the affairs of the world shall demand that all nations join in a program of war disarmament.

New York's war to enforce the law against illegal liquor resulted in 3,600 arrests and four convictions. Of course there can be no proper enforcement of any law with such a record. The place to begin cleaning up seems to be in the lower police courts of New York.

Putting a number of republican prohibition agents into the field in place of the democrats will not stop bootlegging. Just so long as doctors can prescribe whiskey and thousands of barrels are released for medical purposes there will be no particular need for prohibition agents.

NO LEAGUE FOR U.S.

Those souls who were fearful that the United States was about to enter the League of Nations will read the statement of Ambassador Harvey with much cheerful comment. In the face of the dictum of the nation by its overwhelming majority, the entrance of the United States into the League would have been suicidal and absurd. One thing Mr. Harvey says that should not be overlooked: that is the reason for the entrance of the United States into the war was not to save the boundaries of European states or to get into a deeper mess over there, but to preserve ourselves. This altruistic nonsense about "saving the world for democracy" has no place in Mr. Harvey's book and forms no part of the policy of the present administration. We are eminently practical and while we are sitting in the game at Conquering the Plague of the Ages.

By FRIDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—In the conquest of leprosy, for which a specific cure has been developed by American physicians at the Hawaiian leprosy colony, one of the oldest and most terrible plagues of the human race has yielded to medical science.

Dr. Johnathan T. McDonald, who has been associated with the work in Hawaii for 12 years and played an important part in perfecting the cure of the disease, gives some facts about this most ancient of the ills of man and how it has yielded to treatment.

Although there are many diseases which are known to have attacked man through the ages of civilization, leprosy is undoubtedly the most ancient of them all. Records of leprosy in China go back six thousand years, or four thousand years before Christ.

Whereas Egypt is generally conceded to be the birthplace of this disease, the contagion and spread of leprosy throughout the world has been terrifying in its completeness. Scarcely a country, no matter how tiny or remote, has not at some time been touched by it. The name for the disease has been translated into every language.

In practically all cases where leprosy has been carried from one community or country to another, it has been carried by man. For centuries, scientists have been unable to find, to date, any lower animal which can contract leprosy. In the year B. C. the disease was spreading all over Europe. The Romans got it from the Greeks; Pompey had carried it into Italy as early as the first century B. C. and it was common among the Jews 260 years previous to that. Later pilgrims from the Holy Land carried leprosy to England and the noble armies of the Crusaders spread it wide during their return to their home lands.

During the tenth century and twelfth centuries, Wales, Ireland, Norway, and Sweden became so infected as to have the disease assume the proportions of a plague. The exact date when the disease invaded America cannot be traced, but it is thought probable that most of the comparatively few cases in this country have been brought by returning travelers who visited the Orient.

At the present time, according to statistics compiled by Dr. Victor G. Helsing, there are approximately 100,000 leprosy cases in the world. It is one of every 500 inhabitants of the world is a leper. The largest number of these are in China. According to a Leprosy Conference held at Calcutta in February of 1920, it is estimated that there are approximately 150,000 leprosy cases in India. There are several thousand in Japan and only 500 in Hawaii, in spite of the popular belief that Molokai houses a large percentage of the world's leprosy.

There are many cases of leprosy in Central and South America, and comparatively few scattered through Mexico, the West Indies, the United States, and Canada. Russia and Sweden have some cases and it is common in Asiatic countries other than those above mentioned. The western coast of Africa is also seriously infected with leprosy has not yet ceased to be a world menace.

And what methods has the world used to get rid of its oldest disease? First of all, segregation has been practiced and, secondly, medical attempts at remedies. Leprosy is spread by bacteria, especially those of the acid fast type. According to the most general belief, although its origin has been attributed variously to climate, too little salt in food, insanitary living conditions and eating spoiled fish.

Today all civilized countries have sanitariums or missionary hospitals for the care and segregation of those infected with leprosy. There are three hospitals for leprosy in the United States, located in the states of Louisiana, California, and Massachusetts. The hospital near Carville, Louisiana, on the Mississippi River, was recently made a Federal Hospital for Leprosy in accordance with the law finally passed by Congress.

In Russia, leprosy is exiled to Siberia. In the Fiji Islands, they are placed on pyres of green leaves of a tree supposed to possess healing qualities. The skin of the victim is slowly cooked, or scorched and the leper, if he survives this rough treatment, is said to recover from his disease.

The reason that leprosy is so much more prevalent in non-Christian countries is said to be that the Bible impresses Christians with the fear of leprosy.

In the eastern countries the believers of other than Christian faiths do not have this fear of the disease, and in many cases leprosy is considered an asset by beggars in that its loathsomeness will excite sympathy.

Dr. McDonald states positively that 142 cases treated in the Kalaiki Hospital for Leprosy have been released as cured since October 1918. These cases have been examined by committees appointed by the territorial Board of Health and declared to be no longer a menace to the public health. They have been set at liberty, but report to the government physicians at intervals to see that symptoms of the disease do not recur. So far not a single relapse has been noted in a period covering nearly three years. During this period of three years, Dr. McDonald has been attending physician at the Kalaiki Hospital and has personally given nearly 10,000 injections of the new preparation of Chaulmoogra oil.

This oil is one of the oldest remedies used in attempts to cure leprosy and has more uses to its credit than any other remedy. It has been used since the time of Moses. The chief problem in using this oil, however, has been that the crude oil nauseated the patient so that its effect was impaired.

Within the last 10 or 15 years a series of improvements in the oil preparation has been evolved from different experiments and observations made in that part of the world where leprosy is most epidemic.

Three or four years ago Dr. A. L. Dean, president of the University of Hawaii and a distinguished chemist, began to study and investigate Chaulmoogra oil. He finally succeeded in producing estherols of the fatty acids of the oil in a thin limpid liquid which has been found to be the most readily absorbed when introduced into the patient by the intra-muscular route rather than into the blood vessels direct by the use of the hypodermic needle. Dr. Dean has constantly improved upon his derivatives of the oil and his technique and methods, assisted by Dr. McDonald.

In speaking of Kalaiki Hospital and the work of Dr. McDonald, Dr. Dean says: "We have increased the number of patients in Kalaiki Hospital who take this oil until every patient in the hospital is now taking the Dean Derivatives and has been doing so for several years. It is true that we have met with splendid success. The medicine is readily absorbed and the patients are all gradually and slowly improving from month to month. The cases in which the disease has been caught in its earlier stages, naturally respond to the treatment most quickly. A great many of the patients are native Hawaiians who formerly had a dread of exile life at the settlement at Molokai."

Paris now we are merely watching to see that the United States is not given the worst of the deal.

Reading the list of accounts for the city before the members vote will restore the "open covenants openly arrived at" system of paying bills and salaries. The members of the council and the few spectators will at least be informed as to the cost of the city in detail. In handling the money of the people there can be none too much frankness and complete freedom to obtain knowledge about why and for what the money goes.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

He'd set his heart on a certain plan. But as often occurs to every man, The forecasters it was not to be. Now had this happened to you or me, No doubt we'd have grumbled most dismally, But this was all that we heard him say: When out of his grasp flew the dream away: "I've had disappointments like this before."

"Used to it? Rather. I've learned the way Life handles us all from day to day. Why, when I was new at the game I thought I ought to win every fight I fought. And claim every pleasure my fancy sought. But now when I hope I've cherished some tumbling down."

I waste no time on a sigh or frown, I know how to act when a dream is o'er— Disappointed? Well, I've been that before.

"I'm an old, old hand at the game today, I know every trick which the fates can play, And when plans don't work as I'd hoped they would."

I shrug my shoulders and just say wood. For it's all for the best when it's understood. Now I say, if it isn't my time to smile, All right, old man, I can wait awhile. You're wrong if you think you can make me I've known disappointment like this before."

LEW SHANK.

After seven years of comparative obscurity Lew Shank of Indianapolis has returned to the limelight. He is the Republican candidate for mayor of the Hoosier capital, having won with a good margin of votes to spare at the recent primaries.

Shank's four years (less five weeks) as mayor of Indianapolis there was "something doing every minute." His reign was more spectacular than that of any other mayor of the city.

During his term of office Shank won national fame by his assault on the high cost of living. His personally conducted cut price of potatoes, butter, milk and other necessities in the city's public market reduced living costs.

Shank's schooling was limited. He never reached the eighth grade. Before entering politics he was in a trolley car, a yeast salesman and an auctioneer.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

May 20, 1881.—An old landmark was burned last night but was not completely destroyed. It was the old brick barn belonging to A. Hyatt Smith in the Second ward. The wood was all burned but the walls remain standing. This barn has the distinction of being the first brick building in this city. It was built in 1843 by Mr. Smith and used as a stable.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO

May 20, 1890.—Three outlaws, said to be members of the once famous Jesse James gang, were captured by the Sheriff at Jefferson and passed through this city today on their way back to Missouri. They have been looking safes and robbing in that part of the country and are wanted in Missouri on a charge of murder.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

May 20, 1901.—Mrs. McKinley, wife of the President, is said to be out of danger after a very serious illness. The first woman exposition at Buffalo opened today with 300,000 people attending. Mechanists all over the country are on strike for a nine-hour day. More than 2,000 struck in New York and 1,500 in Milwaukee. Few struck in Chicago.

TEN YEARS AGO

May 20, 1911.—Students at the state school for the blind did some good work in their annual track meet yesterday and made some good records. The contract for remodeling the old Jefferson school for the Rock County Teachers' Training school on the third floor was awarded to Van Pool Brothers when the bids were opened this afternoon.

FRUIT ACIDS AND THE TEETH

Certain kinds of fruit such as apples, oranges, grapes, peaches, plums, grapefruit and cherries, contain acids of the organic group (not mineral acids). When eaten such fruits do not increase or produce acidity of any of the body fluids or of the blood. On the contrary, the acid fruits increase alkalinity or decrease acidity of the body fluids and are commonly known as "acid" fruits by physicians who have actual physiological knowledge by these acids.

Is that indigestion or grapefruit invariably increases the acidity of the blood? Sometimes the teeth are put on edge by these acid fruits. Is it wise to take an acid fruit as the final part of a meal, leaving the fruit acid in the mouth to act upon the teeth?

Yes, it is wise. The acid reaction persists but a few moments in any case, for it is soon neutralized by the alkaline saliva poured out under the stimulus of the acid fruit. But for the few moments of mild acidity food which is being done by the fruit acid. It aids in the removal of sticky particles of food from the surface of the teeth and from the spaces between the teeth where food particles are likely to remain and undergo fermentation and other bacterial changes which lead to decay or caries of the teeth.

Dr. William Brady, Dean of Tufts College Dental School, in a valuable article on "Dental Hygiene," in the "Commonwealth," issued October, 1920, by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, states that a school which carries to school or obtains at the school lunch room should always include an orange, an apple, or some similar fruit as dessert to the meal of the school, jam or sweets so often used. I venture to add the suggestion that the fruit be added, not substituted for the dessert, to the health and growth of the school child. But the point Dr. Brady makes is that the acid fruit should top off the school lunch for the health of the child's teeth. And in my judgment it is an excellent point—in fact, I think the apple or the orange or the pear or the peach or the apricot or the prune or plum or a much better tooth-cleaning agent.

'THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE'

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XXXVIII. THE TRIP

But fortunately Ruth was young, and the prospect of a change of scene cheered her a little. But only a little. For certainly nothing so looked forward to was ever undertaken under more curious conditions. A little while ago she would have given anything to go to the city, to be near Tim and Myra—and now she was going in a few days. And she would be near Tim and Myra too! Did Fate ever play a more ironic trick, she wondered?

And then she felt she could not bear seeing the two together. She would certainly go to the city. She could not refuse the opportunity, the inspiration, it might give her. But she could not bear the thought of seeing the two old friends. Somehow she felt Myra had betrayed a trust. She did not know how very truthful was the suspicion.

She would go, but stay at some quiet boarding house and not tell Myra until she had gotten home!

But this plan was not to work out either. For her mother, pleased at the idea that her daughter, too, was to see the city, had promptly told Mrs. Weed.

"And Mrs. Weed says she thinks there'll be room at Myra's new flat for you and that you will save board and you can stay longer."

"Oh no, I'm sure there won't be—I'd rather stay alone," Ruth protested.

"Stay alone, when your best friend has a vacant room for you! In that case, I don't think much of city hospitality," Mrs. O'Neil said, and went on about her work, her flat heated shoes coming down with a resounding thump as she tramped here and there about the house.

"I've written to Myra to expect you. It will be such a glorious experience," Mrs. Weed said in her gentle, kindly way.

"Yes," Ruth answered, in a strained voice.

It would be an experience, indeed! But how little she understood, these women could never understand. An experience to be dreaded, but to be gone through with for the good that might be in it!

The small trunk was brought out tears blotted the paper she was using. But finally she forced herself to do that too—it was easier to write it the first time than to say it.

She would never be able to wish him happiness—to look at him, with the wreck of her old love in her eyes—and keep her composure. She would have to wish him happiness, and she would do it better where she wanted, and when they met, that part would be over.

So Ruth forced herself to the task, as she forced herself to do everything necessary—not knowing, or caring, that every sacrifice and every hurt was building up for her a character that in the end would make her one of the best and bravest of women!

And finally they were off!

At least Ruth felt, looking out the car window, it was good to get away. Her old friends at home could not help but notice the change in her, and that, coming with the announcement of Myra's engagement to Tim, would certainly give things away. They would say she had "ditched" Ruth. The girl shuddered at the vulgarity of the term and kept her face to the window, watching the passing scenery.

"Philadelphia this evening, and I'll stay over a day," her aunt said, and she noticed the change in her, and that, coming with the announcement of Myra's engagement to Tim, would certainly give things away. Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man 22 years of age. I am working with my father, who is in business here. We had a young girl working with us for a while whom I love with all my heart and she said she would come back and stay with me when I was alone. I did not know her address at the time she left. It was two weeks before she came back and gave me her address. I have called to see her, but can't find her at home.

She has not come back to see me since. Is it true that she does not love me, or is it my father's temper that is the cause of her not coming? Please give me advice. It will be hard to lose her. WONDERRING.

A misunderstanding seems to be the cause of your trouble. I would advise you to write a letter to the girl and ask her to set a time for you to call on her. If she discards your letter, you may as well make up your mind that she does not care for you. If she loved you deeply your father's temper would not be a reason enough for her to give you up.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in the sixth grade. I have one hundred every day in all of my work and have been taught to be respectful to my teacher.

When there are any special occasions she always brings me a card. I think she always brings me a card soon to have some pets. Do you think that is right? There are some very naughty boys in my school and she seems to have special preference for them. What can I do? I am a girl. CROCOD LITTLE GIRL.

It is impossible to say why your teacher brings you a card. Do the best you can in your work and trust that your effort and good-will will ultimately win the regard of your teacher. It might help if your parents would invite your teacher to dinner some night. In that way you would become better acquainted.

It is unwise to have "pets." But it is human to have preferences. Your teacher, however, should try to be impartial.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl of 19 and I have been going with a young man of 20. He is very nice to me and also very jealous, but I don't seem to care for him as much as I did when I met him.

I go with other young men and it makes him very jealous. He has asked me several times to marry him, but I don't care to. Two weeks ago he came to see me, intoxicated. I like him better than any man I ever met, but I do not feel ready to settle down. Please give me your advice.

LONESOME BLONDIE.

Do not marry the man since you do not love him. You are very young and should wait for someone for whom you feel a true affection.

should, do you need my advice to accept her? For pity's sake, why refuse her when you would do the proposing yourself if you had the nerve? But if you really love her, you won't make it necessary for her to humiliate herself by proposing to you. You'll say the wonderful words yourself this very night, and be the happiest man in the world forever after. Good luck to you.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.

The Editor.

whom you will have greater love and respect.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years of age. I like to go with fellows. I go to the dance hall and dance with them, but they do not ask me to go with them. Tell me what to do to get one. THANK YOU.

You are too young to "go with fellows" and to attend a public dance hall. Spend your evenings at home and when you are older you will probably find that young men like you without any effort on your part. You will then be a public dancer and you will continue to attend a public dance hall. A girl should not dance with a young man unless she is properly introduced.

Man Regains Eyesight by Unusual Operation

Carl Monsko, 35, resident of Whitewater, was in the operating room of Mercy hospital. He was totally blind to his right eye, the result of a slight accident which, when neglected, developed into blindness.

On the skill of the surgeon, the nurses and operating staff depended whether Monsko would ever be able to use his right eye again. It was a case for modern surgery with skill and accuracy, combined with medical nerve. More than a year ago Monsko was driving a nail, the head of which was smeared with dry paint. As he pounded the nail, a bit of the nail head flew off and struck him in the right eye. He thought it was dry paint at the time and paid no attention to the wound.

Lens Turns White
Months later his vision in the right eye grew dim and then he went blind. Examination showed that the lens of the eye-ball had turned white, having been killed by the foreign article embedded in the nerve and muscles. Brought to Janesville he was examined by Dr. F. L. Lintelman with the aid of powerful X-ray. It was found that there was a small bit of steel from the nail which had sunk into the lens destroying the use and function of this part of the eye-ball which focus light to the optic nerve. It meant an operation with incalculable accuracy and cutting. A slip of the surgeon's knife among the delicate muscles of the eye would have provoked a tiny opening was cut in the corner of the eye. A giant magnet was used to draw the steel particle from the lens of the eye out. This was but a part of the operation for the lens was useless. This part of eye-ball was entirely removed without injuring the eye.

This left the eye without a means of focus. The optic nerve was not impaired. Special glasses were obtained to provide a substitute lens and are now being satisfactorily used by the Whitewater man who underwent reading tests recently to determine the success of the operation.

BEAUTIFY PARKS

The work of beautifying Janesville's parks for the season was begun Thursday by the Janesville Floral company in placing a large number of ferns and flower plants in the Corn Exchange triangle.

ZORA, "HUMAN PACK HORSE," IS IN RIPE OLD AGE

Constantinople.—Zora, the "human pack horse," who claims to be 147 years old and still can carry 200 pounds with ease, attributes his long life and health to hard work and proper diet. He has always been a carrier of heavy weights.

His rules of health are: Hard work, sleep, cold baths at night, no tobacco, no alcohol, no coffee, no meat, no oils, no butter, no drinking water but plenty of hot tea, honey, sugar, cakes, bread and cheese, particularly buttermilk or clabber. Every five years he takes a three months' rest in his native home in the country.

Whatever his age, Zora is a picture of health and physical vigor, mentally alert, benign, and frequently blessing the curious American sailors who visit him at his favorite cafe on the Galata waterfront.

He is five feet ten inches tall, deep breasted, and has the carriage of a shank. He is almost bald, his face is long and covered with a shiny nut-brown skin.

His eyesight and memory are good and he recalls the days when the first steamship came to Constantinople. He says he worked as a peasant at Bithia until the age of 37 when he came to Constantinople to work at the Turkish Arsenal and that he worked there for 80 years.

Zora has been married four times. All of his wives are dead, and all but two of his children. His son, Osman, aged 97, being in poor health, recently returned to Bithia. His daughter, Gouli Hanum, aged 50, is married and healthy. Zora's father died at the age of 76 and his mother at the age of 83.

Zora isn't rich because of so many expenses in caring for his family. He lives in a Kurd Khan where he pays a dollar and a half a month for a place to sleep and hot water to make his tea.

"What I want is work," declared Zora. "Idleness will ruin my health. I'll pray all my life for him who giveth me work. Health, happiness and wisdom come from work only." Asked if he intended to join the Turkish National army, Zora smiled benevolently and shook his head. "I fought many times for my country and now I wish to end my life in prayer for the prosperity of the Empire," he said.

TAFT SLATED AS NEXT CHIEF JUSTICE

Ex-President and Sen. Sutherland Favored for U. S. Bench.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Who will be the next chief justice of the United States? The death of Chief Justice White hastens the consideration of a problem that President Harding did not expect to tackle until the end of the present term of the supreme court, when it was generally assumed that Mr. White would retire.

For many months it has been accepted that the end of this term of court would see not only the retirement of a chief justice but other members of the court of advanced age. President Harding has from the beginning hoped that he would be able to appoint former Senator George Sutherland, Utah, who was his constant adviser during the campaign, and whose judicial capacity is unquestioned.

Another hope which Mr. Harding has had was that an opportunity would present itself whereby he could honor former President Taft with a place on the highest bench of the land. To appoint Mr. Taft and Mr. Sutherland would require two vacancies and it is not improbable that President Harding will delay appointing a successor to the chief justice until after the close of this term of court so that he can make two appointments at one time.

The difficulty about appointing former Senator Sutherland to the chief justiceship is the fact that he was born in England. It has never been customary for any but a native American to occupy the position, though of course Senator Sutherland, like the late Secretary Lane and former Secretary of Labor Wilson, spent so little of his youth under the British flag that he has never been regarded as anything but 100 per cent American. While George Sutherland is likely, therefore, to become an associate justice some day, the chances are that he will not be made chief justice. That place in all probability will go to former President Taft, if it goes to anyone not now on the bench. The difficulty about elevating the present members of the court is that the republicans are too advanced in age and the younger justices are democrats. The next chief justice will be a republican.

The movement to appoint former President Taft to become the head of the supreme court has been spontaneous ever since it became known that Chief Justice White would retire. There has been no exerting of pressure, no attempt to line up political influences of any kind—it has been a simple expression that has come in many informal ways to President Harding that the appointment of Mr. Taft would be popular with the country.

Ever since Mr. Taft entered public life his intimate friends have said that he was happiest on the bench. As a federal judge in Ohio he was not only popular but his decisions were noteworthy. On his retirement from the presidency, Mr. Taft became the head of the war labor board and won the confidence of labor by his fairness and impartiality. In the league of nations controversy he clung tenaciously to the wing of the republican party which favored co-operation with Europe as against absolute isolation. He won praise from the democratic press for his stand alongside President Wilson when the latter was making an active fight for the league of nations.

Of course Washington is full of gossip already concerning the possibility that Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes may be given the chief justiceship. This has proceeded from the notion that Mr. Hughes gave up a lucrative law practice and consented to get into the public service again because of an expectation that he would not be expected to remain secretary of state throughout the administration but would go back on the bench when a vacancy occurred. Anyone who knows Mr. Hughes of course doesn't believe that he took the portfolio of secretary of state with any such expectation but simply because he felt it a duty to help in a crisis in foreign policy. He has done his job so well and Mr. Harding leans so heavily upon him that the idea of promoting him at this time to the bench can be dismissed at once as out of the question. To take out of the department of state one who is formulating the nation's foreign policy would only open anew for Mr. Harding the scores of factionalists in congress and cause trouble at a time when things are slowly but surely being smoothed out.

Name Hughes for President. Chief justiceship, particularly those who do not like the influence in foreign policy that Mr. Hughes is exerting, have been whispering that Mr. Hughes is a potential candidate for the presidency. They cannot, however, see anything tangible for Mr. Hughes doesn't talk about his own future to anyone. Indeed, Washington correspondents recall how for months he kept crying out absolutely in doubt whether he would accept the presidential nomination in 1916, and nobody can say he did a thing to bring about the nomination. Nevertheless, the politically minded have been saying that Mr. Harding will have a contender in 1924 for re-nomination, and that Mr. Hughes ought to be appointed to the bench so as not to be a factor. Curiously enough, political interpreters of the appointment of Mr. Hughes to the supreme court by Mr. Taft as a step that would remove the then popular governor of New York as an important contender for the nomination in 1912. But however this may be, 1924 is a long ways off, and except for the folks in congress who think and dream of the white type of American whose legal ability entitles him to the place, the situation today, Mr. Hughes will be retained as secretary of state because he is essential to the success of the Harding administration.

Mr. Sutherland will be appointed an associate justice in due time, because President Taft believes he is of the white type of American whose legal ability entitles him to the place. Former President Taft will be made chief justice if President Harding decides to name a man outside of the present membership of the court. Mr. Taft himself at one time intended to put a newcomer, Charles Evans Hughes—at the head of the court, but changed his mind at the last minute and proposed Associate Justice White, while appointing Mr. Hughes to become an associate justice.

Reorganization of R. R. Commission Deferred. [An Associated Press.] Madison—Re-organization of the railroad commission was deferred by the assembly Thursday when it refused to take immediate action on the report of the special investigation committee which brought forward a bill changing the name to public service commission. The bill providing for a one man tax commission, a state conservation board, the abolition of the board of education, and re-organization of the civil service commission, will be up for consideration in a few days.

After a week's trial a number of the signers of the resolution signed another drafted by the farmers to rescind the daylight saving plan.

Menasha—The machinery and buildings of the Jorgensen stone quarry recently installed were burned to the ground by a fire which started when the drive belt of the main fly wheel of the quarry machinery flew off and knocked over a five-gallon can full of kerosene, which spread over the engine and ignited. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

Pond du Lac—The Pond du Lac tuberculosis sanatorium plan has not been abandoned. This county stands ready to entertain proposals for a combination with Dodge, Washington, or Green Lake counties. Washington county has expressed a desire to proceed with the building of a sanatorium with Pond du Lac county and according to statements of the members of the Pond du Lac county board, Green Lake would like to join with this county.
